that is, the kids in same-sex households look no different than kids in heterosexual households, but there are some pretty important limitations with much of the research.