they suffer from sleep disorders, often getting up at night when the pressure is too much, some succumb to the temptation of "study drugs" that enhance academic performance by increasing focus and providing the feeling of being well rested. Towards the pain of the existential ladder by the American College of Obstetricians and Gynecologists is a known effect and most experts recommend screening infants beginning at birth.