like to make sure I am keeping my cardiovascular strong (I'm thin and have always been a runner/cyclist).

data from its trial, along with the anticipated data from its partner's European study to decide it is currently undergoing trials in patients with treatment-resistant depression.

fast-forward to October 2012, when the FDA did its own tests and determined that budeprion XL was not, in fact, bioequivalent to the brand.