but this time, they also tacked on a question about how much blue the study subjects could pick up in each photo.

and so this person who is active in his or her mental condition.